ROLE AT TMS GLOBAL

Sarah serves as the vice president for mobilization. In this role, she gives strategic direction to TMS Global's efforts to mobilize individuals and churches for cross-cultural mission work, both in the US and abroad. Internationally, TMS Global trains and mobilizes churches to join the global mission movement to serve least-reached people by developing mobilization hub teams, tools, and training. Domestically, the US mobilization teams walk alongside individuals and churches as they discover their unique place in God's global mission. A former campus minister, Sarah oversees and directs TMS Global's mobilization efforts with the passion of seeing the body of Christ awaken to its calling and, together, display and proclaim the kingdom of God.

BACKGROUND

After a brief stint working as a chemist for Merck Pharmaceuticals, Sarah moved to Kentucky and began working as a campus minister at the Wesley Foundation at the University of Kentucky. After nine years at the Wesley Foundation, Sarah joined the TMS Global staff in a support role for missionaries who were serving and preparing to serve. She assumed the role of director of mobilization and candidacy in 2017, the role of senior director of mobilization in 2019, and the role of Vice President for Mobilization in 2021. In all of her roles, it has been her greatest joy to see people discover who they are in Christ, and how God desires for them to engage with the world.

PERSONAL

Bert and Sarah met and married in South Georgia and later moved to Kentucky where Sarah pursued her Master of Divinity at Asbury Theological Seminary. Ten years and three kids later, Sarah finally earned her degree and their family moved back to Georgia. In her spare time, Sarah loves to read, do puzzles, hike, and spend time with the people she loves.
