ROLE AT TMS GLOBAL

Steve serves as the vice president for mobilization. In this role, Steve helps guide TMS Global's efforts to mobilize people and churches for cross-cultural mission work, both in the US and abroad.

Internationally, Steve trains and mobilizes churches to join the global mission movement to serve least-reached people. Domestically, he guides the US mobilization teams which activate local churches in reaching out to their communities and the world. These teams also recruit people to find their place in serving God in various contexts.

Steve has served with TMS Global for more than 15 years, living in Costa Rica, Mexico, and now in Atlanta.

BACKGROUND

While living in Mexico, Steve and his family focused their work on community development, discipleship, and church planting in one of the poor urban neighborhoods of Monterrey. He also worked with the Methodist Church of Mexico in their mission strategy development.

Prior to working with TMS Global, Steve served as a pastor and student minister in churches in Georgia.

PUBLICATIONS

Steve has written a book called The Bridge Guide: A Parent and Youth Conversation Guide for the Summer Before High School, which is used by churches and schools. Steve has collected stories of rites of passage from around the globe, and he helps parents adapt common elements to craft a unique "Road Trip" experience, designed to strengthen relationships during the teenage years.

PERSONAL

Steve and his wife, Heather, have three boys and one girl. In his spare time, if there is such a thing with four children, he enjoys good food and live music with his wife, family, and friends. Occasionally, you can find Steve camping, kayaking, rock climbing, mountain biking, or woodworking.
